QUESTION 2

2.1 Attorneys and advocates in South Africa are registered with the Legal Practice Council in terms of the Legal Practice Act 28 of 2014. Since 1998 the Law Society of South Africa (LSSA) has represented the attorney profession. The LSSA brings together the Black Lawyers Association, the National Association of Democratic Lawyers and provincial attorneys' associations in representing the attorneys' profession in South Africa. Its main aim is to look after the interests of its members as well as the public in general. As a result of the latter, it stands to reason that the LSSA has various functions.

2.1.1 The firm of attorneys where you are employed publishes a quarterly report on general issues that its clients, as well as the public at large and law students, would find informative and interesting.

The senior partner at your firm has asked you to write a short article for its next publication. Your instruction and brief is to highlight SIX functions of the LSSA. No discussion is necessary as readers will be asked to submit frequently asked questions under the FAQ section in the publication after the article has been published. (6 × 2) (12)

2.1.2 If the LSSA represents attorneys, which professional body looks after the interests of advocates? (2)

2.1.3 Explain the following statement:

The LSSA is a watchdog over the activities of attorneys. (2)

2.1.4 In the introductory paragraph it is mentioned that the LSSA looks after the interests of both its members (attorneys) and the general public.

How do you think it is possible for the LSSA to look after the interests of both attorneys and clients (the public)? Is it not contradictory? Substantiate your point of view. (2 × 2) (4)

2.2 Your lecturer has decided to arrange an outing for the class. The class will visit the high court in the city in the province where you study. Of particular interest is a visit to the Master's Office. Each student has a questionnaire to complete. The idea is that each student must collect as much information as possible on each of the Master's duties and functions. After the visit, students must complete and submit their questionnaire with answers. Your questionnaire focuses one of the three important functions of the Master of the High Court, namely the specialised functions. Assume that your visit has come to an end and that you are busy completing your questionnaire.

Give FIVE specialised functions of the Master of the High Court and briefly explain each. (5 × 2) (10)

QUESTION 3

3.1 Susan Matthews and her husband, Johnny, have a child that is very sick. Their child has a severe form of epilepsy that causes him to stop breathing. Recently Susan and Johnny have been charged with a criminal offence because a neighbour has reported both parents to the police for using marijuana ('dagga') as a cure for the child's epilepsy. Susan and Johnny argue that they have not committed any crime since they live in a rural part of the Karoo and in their community the use of marijuana has always been quite acceptable to be used as a medicine. According to both parents it is law.

3.1.1 Assume you are working for Legal Aid in Beaufort West (the town where the Matthews family lives).

Advise both parents on whether their claim that the use of marijuana is law, is custom and therefore acceptable by applying FOUR ways in which one can test their claim. (4 × 2) (8)

3.1.2 Is custom still an important source of law in South Africa? Write only 'Yes' or 'No'.

HINT: Do courts still consider custom when pronouncing a verdict? (2)

3.2 Consult ADDENDUM A (attached) and answer the following questions.

3.2.1 Identify the document. (1)

3.2.2 Why is language proficiency an important requirement for any person doing this job? (2)

3.2.3 Explain the significance of the inclusion of point number 9 on the document. (2)

3.2.4 Briefly explain point number 12 on the document. (2)

3.2.5 If you want to apply for a job during the next college holidays and need to submit certified copies of your ID and highest academic qualifications, can the campus head at your campus certify your documents as true copies of the original documents? Write 'Yes' or 'No' and give a reason for the answer. (3)

MAINTAINING TRUST ACCOUNTS

The Law Society expects attorneys to maintain their trust accounts. As an attorney it is your obligation to ensure that clients' trust funds are safe. The purpose of a trust account is to safeguard and protect clients' funds. To ensure the safety of trust funds, you need to separate trust funds from business funds. An attorney's trust account is essentially a business cheque account or its equivalent, established by the firm to hold client funds. Funds deposited into a trust account are neither your property nor the property of the firm.

1. Keep trust funds separate from business funds. Rule 54.8 of the Legal Practice Act (LPA) states that trust transactions must be kept separate from business transactions.

2. Keep individual trust accounts so that one client's monies are not mingled with another's.

3. Trust funds may not be used until the firm has earned it.

4. What are the rules for fees earned in advance? If you are unsure, deposit funds into the trust account. Fees can only be transferred from the trust account to the business account after doing the work and debiting a fee.

5. Trust money shall in no circumstances be deposited into or credited to a business banking account. Money other than trust money found in a trust banking account at any time shall be transferred to a business banking account without undue delay. A firm shall be deemed to have complied sufficiently with this rule if it makes transfers from its trust banking account to its business banking account at least once a month; and ensures that, when making a transfer from its trust banking account to its business banking account the amount transferred is identifiable with, and does not exceed, the amount due to the firm.

3.3.1 If a trust account is being used by an attorney and/or lawyer's firm to safeguard and protect clients' money, why does an attorney operate a business account as well? (2)

3.3.2 Briefly explain the type of money or funds typically found in a trust account. (2)

3.3.3 Explain the meaning of the following sentence in point number 3 of the article:

'Trust funds may not be used until the firm has earned it.' (2)

3.3.4 Consider the situation where an attorney has provided a service to a client. The client received an invoice for the service rendered and paid the attorney's office the invoice amount in cash.

Would it be wrong of the attorney to deposit that money into his business account and not into the trust account when it was clear that the money was not fees earned in advance? Formulate your response to this dilemma by referring to point number 4 in the article. (2 × 2) (4)

QUESTION 4

4.1 Small claims courts have jurisdiction to hear any civil matter involving a capped amount published in the Government Gazette. These courts are used to settle minor civil disputes and claims between parties, without representation, in an informal manner. If you intend instituting a claim in the small claims court (SCC) ensure that the opposing party can compensate you should the judgment be in your favour. It is pointless to institute a claim against another person who is unemployed and who possesses no property.

4.1.1 Below is a copy of your class notes on the six steps to follow when taking someone to the small claims court. Unfortunately, you lent your notes to a friend in your class to study for this exam but when he returned the notes, you immediately saw that it had been messed up. Your friend apologised and said that he knocked over a cup of coffee on the notes while he was studying. You still have four hours before you write the exam at 13:00 and still have to study a section of module 3 on litigation and debt collecting.

Look at the damaged notes (below) and try to make out what you can salvage to recreate the class notes.

Six steps to claim from another person in the SCC

Step 1: Contact the other party.

Contact the opposing party (the person against whom you are instituting legal proceedings) either in person, in writing or telephonically and request them to settle your claim.

Step 2: Write a letter of demand.

If the opposing party does not satisfy your claim, send them a written demand setting out the facts on which the claim is based and the amount you are seeking. Deliver the written demand by hand or registered post to the opposing party. Give the opposing party 14 days from the time they receive your letter to settle your claim.

Step 3: Go to the clerk of the court.

After 14 days report to the clerk of the court with the following documents:

- Proof that the written demand was delivered, such as a Post Office slip.
- Any contract, document or other proof upon which your claim is based or that is related to it.
- The full name and address (home and business addresses, if available) and telephone number of the opposing party.

Step 4:	A summons is sent to the opposing party. The clerk of the court will examine your documents and help you draw up the summons. The clerk of the court will issue the summons and hand it to you to hand to the opposing party or by the sheriff of the court. The clerk of the court will also inform you of the date and time the case will be heard in court.
Step 5:	The hearing • You must appear in court in person. • Ensure you have all the relevant documents on which your claim is based with you. • Ensure that you have the written proof that the summons was served on the opposing party. • The commissioner of the court will ask you to state your case. • State the facts as concisely as possible.
Step 6:	After judgment has been given If the judgment is given in your favour, the person must pay the money immediately and will be issued a receipt.

List and complete the SIX steps to follow when taking another person to the small claims court and briefly explain each. (6 × 2) (12)

4.1.2 The introductory paragraph of this question states that the SCC can hear any civil matter involving a capped amount published via the Government Gazette.

What is the current amount? Give the answer in rand. (1)

4.1.3 The article mentions that the person who will hear the plaintiff's case is referred to as the commissioner.

Which other professional role does the commissioner perform when he/she is not hearing cases in the small claims court? (2)

4.1.4 Explain the meaning of the words 'without representation' in the second sentence (line three) of the introduction to QUESTION 4.1. (2)

4.1.5 If the plaintiff is not satisfied with the judgement of the commissioner, would it be possible, like in other court cases, to appeal the judgement (outcome of the case)? Write only 'Yes' or 'No' and give a reason for the answer. (3)

4.2 List FIVE departments in an attorney's practice. (5 × 2) (10)

QUESTION 5

5.1 Members of the public can lodge complaints against any law professional through a legal hotline called the 'Trustline' initiative which is run by the Law Society of South Africa (LSSA) and the Attorneys Fidelity Fund. The public can lodge complaints at 0800 202 036 or at trustline@tip-off.com.

List FOUR types of unethical behaviour of attorneys or complaints lodged by members of the public that are investigated free of charge by the Law Society of South Africa. (4)

5.2 List SEVEN formalities stipulated by the Wills Act and the Common Law that must be complied with by the testator to make a legally valid will. (7 × 2) (14)

5.3 An agreement of the intent or willingness of two or more parties to bind at least one party to various terms and conditions, is characterised by mutual negotiation. Such negotiation is usually formalised in the form of a contract and signed by the parties concerned.

Additional information:

- Your sister, Mary Philander (tenant), wants to rent a flat from your neighbour, Thabo Baloyi (landlord).
- Address of tenant: 12 Troy Road, Mitchell's Plain, Cape Town, 7785
- Address of landlord: 518 The Iron Works, Main Road, Woodstock, Cape Town, 7925
- Domicilium citandi et executandi of property rented: 307 Blue Water Bay, Beach Road, Sea Point, Cape Town, 8001
- Monthly rental is R17 000.
- This agreement is signed at _____ on the ___ day of _____ 2020.
- Signatures of tenant and landlord should be in its appropriate places.

Use the basic information given and draw up a basic lease agreement or contract by setting out the three components that form the structure of any agreement. Underneath each component, which you will use as a heading (underline each, organise the given information by writing it underneath its corresponding heading to give structure to the agreement. (12)

QUESTION 6

6.1 ADDENDUM B (attached) is a basic, quick online application form used to apply for a liquor licence in the geographical area where the applicant lives.

Assume you are working form a firm of attorneys. You deal with a lot of correspondence daily, including email messages which include enquiries from the public who go online and contact the firm via the Internet to get more information or clarity on matters they do not understand.

One such query is from a prospective client, Mr Fabian, who completed the application form. He also sent an email message wanting to know, amongst other things, whether his application will be successful if he instructs the lawyer's firm to apply for a liquor licence for his daughter's wedding in December.

Having dealt with similar questions before, you immediately draft and send Mr Fabian an email, explaining to him the basic requirements any applicant for a liquor licence must meet in order to be considered by the Liquor Licencing Board to be awarded a licence.

Design a basic checklist of SEVEN items that Mr Fabian can use to see if he meets all the requirements to be considered for a liquor licence. Use the template below for the checklist you will create.

6.3 You are working as legal secretary in a firm of attorneys. The law firm consists of six partners, two bookkeepers, a personal assistant for the senior partner, Mr Jackson, and a receptionist as well as two legal secretaries of which you are one.

Last Monday Mr Jackson called you to his office. He mentioned that over the years the firm has been fortunate to have had the excellent services of the receptionist but that she has resigned. She informed Mr Jackson that she is expecting her first-born and will be taking four months maternity leave. Her expertise in receiving clients and answering the switchboard (receiving many telephone calls daily) leaves a huge gap in the law firm. Mr Jackson also informed you that the firm has managed to interview and require the services of a lady who has just successfully finished her National Management Assistant Diploma. She will be joining the firm in a week's time. To this effect, Mr Jackson wants you to put your experience as a legal secretary to the test and mentor the new receptionist. This means that you will have to fast-track the new employee regarding the importance and techniques of how to deal with clients on the telephone as a large part of her job would be to receive and redirect calls to the entire firm of twelve staff members.

When you left Mr Jackson's office, you got a brilliant idea. In order not to offend the new receptionist by talking to her about how to answer the telephone in a professional manner, you will apply your mind to the topic of basic telephone etiquette and type out some basic, but important rules of best practice for good telephone manners. This list you will print, laminate and leave in the drawer of her desk in the reception area where she will spend most of her time at work.

List SEVEN rules of good practice for proper telephone etiquette and telephone manners in the office. (7 × 2) (14)
