ADDENDUM A

What will be hot in South Africa?

Natural living, repurposing, power walking and hybrid shopping will be big in 2018. But the biggest revolution of the New Year will be tablets, trends analyst Dion Chang told Liesl Peyper. Here are his predictions for what else will be trendy.

The biggest thing

The arrival of tablets such as Apple's iPad and the Samsung Galaxy Tab was far-reaching in 2011 and it will have a knock-on effect in 2016.

The impact of tablets is the big thing. It's going to change education completely. There are headmasters in Jo'burg, for example, who are saying, even in their lifetime they'll see the disappearance of the textbook. Everybody will come into a classroom with an iPad. More consumers will be reading magazines online. With books we'll see a very strong crossover to reading on tablets. It's going to be a big, big game changer.

Our value system

The change in value systems has been a gradual process starting from 2009 throughout to 2010 and 2011. By 2018 this will settle.

If you look at the Occupy Wall Street movement, it's a radical shift, mainly from a younger generation. My company, Flux Trends, does a lot of millennial studies and if you take it from that point of view the millennial generation has been handed a damaged world.

Politics are in a mess, the environment is in a mess, the economy is in a mess and there's a lot of anger at the elders.

People will find a way of doing things differently. They'll be more socially conscious. They used to say 'I'm living greener and this is it,' but the value systems about living green, about ethics, about fair trade now determine which brand you're going to peg, your loyalty on. We don't consume blindly anymore, we start investigating a bit about sustainable packaging, for example.

Social media

Social media has become a great democratic levelling of classes. It levels the playing field but it also destroys the invisible barrier one needs between a celebrity or someone important and the public.

What's interesting is we no longer have an A-list, the so-called superstars. What we're starting to see are the 'geek celebrities'. People who invent things that add value to our lives are much more revered.

Also, social media etiquette has become really important. When you're tweeting from your lounge it seems like a private thing but it actually goes all over the place around the world.

I'm beginning to practise social media etiquette. If someone starts tweeting incessantly and have conversations with other people over Twitter I immediately unfollow them. I think it's bad etiquette to have a conversation on a social media platform.

We're starting to see the early signs of a slow drop-off on Facebook. Companies use this platform to give customers a value-added service that's more relevant to them, rather than using it as a marketing platform for selling things. The cardinal rule is not to try to sell something to a new friend, which is what brands are trying to do via social media – they make new friends then try to sell them something. Friends don't do that to one another.

The way we buy

The recession caused a huge retail revolution, not only in SA but worldwide. In the US, for example, there's a movement called Forever Frugal Customer.

The question is where we are going to be when this recession is over. Consumer habits altered but consumers won't immediately bounce back.

Previously people who used to buy all their stuff from Woolworths may have moved to Pick 'n Pay and Pick 'n Pay customers may have gone to Shoprite Checkers.

We now have a chameleon customer who shops at Mr Price Home, buys food at Woollies then goes to an outdoor food market like The Old Biscuit Mill in Cape Town.

These consumers completely warp behavioural patterns. So you'll get a completely fragmented – and in marketing terms almost schizophrenic – shopper because they've discovered DIY; they've discovered upscaling and vintage.

Travel

People are looking for destinations that really have it all. Places like Thailand have become even more popular in the past two years. In Thailand you have the beach, fabulous food and fabulous people. There is history and culture so you can dive into a whole lot of things. There's a bigger demand for budget packages.

I travel to Europe for business but it's really expensive. The more adventurous explorers are now starting to visit the Bric nations (Brazil, Russia, India and China).

ADDENDUM A

Wat sal cool wees in Suid-Afrika?

'n Natuurlike leefwyse, aanpassing vir gebruik met 'n ander doel ('repurposing'), kragstap ('power walking') en hibriedinkopies sal in 2018 groot wees, maar die grootste verandering in die nuwe jaar sal tablette wees, het die ontleder van wêreldneigings Dion Chang aan Liesl Peyper gesê. Hier is sy voorspellings oor wat nog in die mode gaan wees.

Die grootste ding
Die koms van tablette soos Apple se iPad en die Samsung Galaxy Tab in 2011 het verreikende gevolge gehad en dit sal in 2016 verder uitkring.

Die impak van tablette is die grootste ding. Dit gaan die onderwys heeltemal verander. Skoolhoofde in Johannesburg sê byvoorbeeld handboeke gaan nog in hulle leeftyd verdwyn. Almal sal iPads in die klaskamer gebruik. Meer verbruikers sal tydskrifte aanlyn lees. Baie mense sal oorskakel van boeke lees na lees op tablette. Dit gaan 'n groot impak op die alledaagse lewe hê.

Ons waardestelsel
Die verandering in waardestelsels was 'n proses wat geleidelik in 2009 tot 2011 begin het. Dit sal teen 2018 begin afplat.

As die Occupy Wall Street-beweging in ag geneem word, is dit 'n radikale verandering, hoofsaaklik van 'n jonger geslag. My maatskappy, Flux Trends, doen baie milleniumstudies, en volgens daardie standpunt het die millenniumgenerasie 'n beskadigde wêreld ontvang.

Die politiek, die omgewing en die ekonomie is chaoties en die leiers is kwaad. Mense moet 'n manier vind om dinge anders te doen. Hulle moet meer sosiaal bewus wees. Vroeër het hulle gesê: "Ek leef groener en dis goed genoeg." Maar deesdae bepaal die waardestelsels oor groen lewe en oor etiek en billike handel aan watter handelsmerk mense lojaal gaan wees. Ons verbruik nie meer blindelings nie. Ons stel byvoorbeeld al 'n bietjie ondersoek in na volhoubare verpakking.

Sosiale media
Sosiale media het klasse demokraties gelykgemaak. Dit maak nie net die speelveld gelyk nie, maar vernietig ook onsigbare skeidslyne tussen beroemdes of belangrikes en die publiek.

Dit is interessant dat ons nie meer 'n A-lys beroemdes – die sogenaamde supersterre – het nie. Ons sien al meer slimkop-beroemdes ('geek celebrities'). Mense wat goed uitvind wat waarde by ons lewens voeg, word meer bewonder.

Sosialemedia-etiket het ook baie belangrik geword. As jy uit jou sitkamer twiet, is dit nie privaat nie. Die twiet trek oor die hele wêreld.

Ek begin sosialemedia-etiket toepas. As iemand onophoudelik twiet en gesprekke met ander mense op Twitter voer, hou ek dadelik op om hulle te volg. Ek dink dit is swak etiket om op 'n sosialemediaplatform 'n gesprek te voer.

Kopiereg voorbehou

ADDENDUM A (vervolg)

Ons sien vroeë tekens van 'n stadige afname in die gebruik van Facebook. Maatskappye gebruik dié platform om aan klante toegevoegde waarde te bied; dit is vir hulle belangriker as om FB as 'n bemarkingsplatform vir verkope te gebruik. Die belangrikste reël is nie om soos handelsmerke iets op sosiale media aan nuwe vriende te probeer verkoop nie. Handelsmerke maak vriende en probeer dan om iets aan daardie nuwe vriende te verkoop. Vriende doen dit nie aan mekaar nie

Hoe ons koop
Die resessie het 'n groot kleinhandelsrevolusie veroorsaak, nie net in SA nie, maar wêreldwyd. In die VSA is daar byvoorbeeld 'n beweging genaamd Forever Frugal Customer. Die vraag is waar ons gaan wees wanneer hierdie resessie verby is.

Verbruikers het hulle gewoontes verander en hulle gaan nie onmiddellik terugbons nie. Mense wat vroeër al hul kruideniersware by Woolworths gekoop het, het miskien na Pick n Pay geskuif en Pick n Pay se kliënte na Shoprite Checkers. Nou draai kliënte hulle mantel na die wind ('chameleon customers') – hulle doen sekere inkopies by Mr Price Home, kos by Woolworths en besoek 'n opelugmark soos The Old Biscuit Mill in Kaapstad. Sulke kliënte trek gedragspatrone heeltemal skeef. In bemarkingsterme kry 'n mens dus gefragmenteerde, amper skisofreniese, kopers, want hulle het doen-dit-self ('DIY') ontdek; hulle het eksklusiwiteit en antieksjiek ('vintage') ontdek.

Reis
Mense is op soek na bestemmings wat alles het. Plekke soos Thailand het die afgelope twee jaar al gewilder geword. In Thailand het jy die strand, fantastiese kos en wonderlike mense. Daar is geskiedenis en kultuur, so daar is baie om te geniet. Daar is 'n groter vraag na goedkoper pakkette.

Ek reis na Europa vir sake, maar dit is baie duur. Die meer avontuurlustige reisigers gaan eerder na die BRIC-lande (Brasilië, Rusland, Indië en China).
