7.3.4 (a) God's Window is one the Blyde River Canyon Nature Reserve's most spectacular viewpoints, with spectacular views over South Africa's Lowveld. At God's Window, majestic cliffs plunge down 700m and, on a clear day, you'll be able to see over the famous Kruger National Park towards the Lebombo Mountains on South Africa's border Mozambique.

(b) The Three Rondavels are spectacular peaks which look exactly like rondavels – round and fat, rising to a peaked top, but much, much higher than any traditional dwelling. In fact, when you stand on the viewpoint, 1 380 m above sea level with the Blyde River Canyon below, you'll still be looking up at those three distinctive peaks which tower 700 m above the surrounding countryside.

(c) Bourke's Luck Potholes in Mpumalanga province are a series of natural geological formations that seem nearer to art than nature. Formed by centuries of water flowing through the landscape, this natural attraction is made up of inter-connected pools, interlaced with sandstone outcrops

(d) Known as the largest 'green canyon' in the world, the Blyde River Canyon is a 33 km long gorge that stretches from Bourke's Luck Potholes to the Three Rondavels near Blydepoort Dam. Aside from its spectacular scenery, the canyon is one of the best birding spots in the country. It's also a popular adventure destination. (4 × 2)

(e) The small town of Sabie is situated on the Panorama Route. It has got beautiful scenery and is surrounded by waterfalls, forests and spectacular views. There are great mountain biking trails. You could go abseiling down the Sabie Waterfall, kloofing in the Mac Mac River or play a round of gold at the Sabie River Sun Hotel. It is a good base for visiting the Kruger National Park.
